1.6 Agriculture and Cropping Pattern:- The farming system in Rewari district is predominantly agriculture integrated with animal husbandry. The major crop-rotations are bajra-wheat, mustard and guar-mustard. Buffalo is the main component under animal husbandry. Mustard and wheat are main crops in rabi season and bajra is main crop in kharif season.

Rewari is a part of Indo-Gangetic plains, hence soil is structure less and is prone to wind carving and crust formation and thus germination of small seeded crops is adversely affected even if a less amount of rain follows after sowing. The soil texture in district varies from sandy to loamy sand texture, being coarse textured, the soil are poor in water as well as in nutrient retention. Almost all soil in the region are low in organic carbon and phosphorus.

Irrigation in the district majorly is dependent on tube-wells with minimal amount of canals. The net irrigated area is 1.14 lakh Hectares.

Chapter-02

Drainage and Irrigation system in District

2.1 The district Rewari is one of the south-eastern districts of Haryana. Topographically, the area comprises small hillocks as a part of Aravalli range and sand-dunes. There is no perennial stream in the district.

2.2 The main streams in the district are the Sahibi and the Krishnawati rivers. The Sahibi River is an ephemeral river and rises from Mewat hills in Jaipur Alwar in Rajasthan and after gathering water from several tributaries, forms a broad stream and enters in the district near Ranawi after which it enters Rajasthan and then re-enters Haryana near village Jarthal. The district, except in its Eastern part is flat and sandy and absorbs all the rain water.

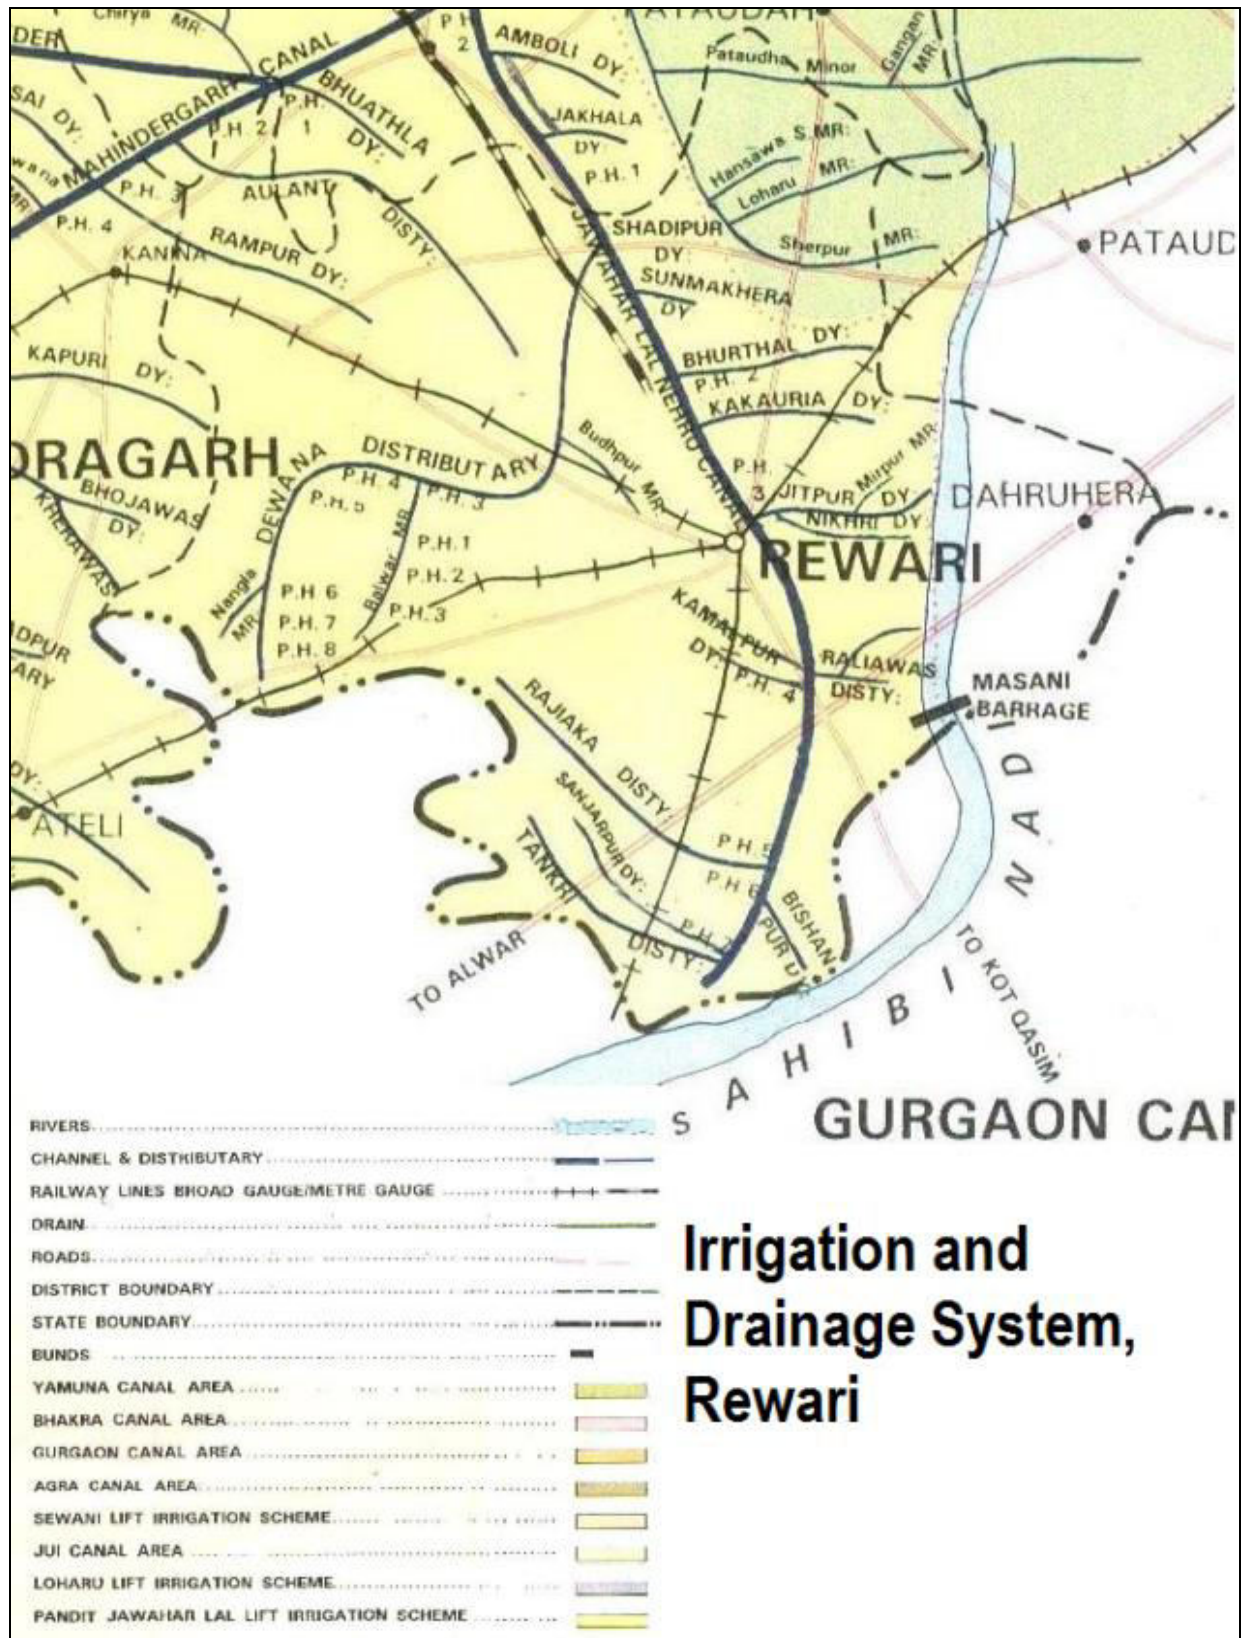

The Krishnawati River enters in the Southern part from Mahendragarh district and nearly makes a border between Mahendragarh and Rewari district. This is a blind river and its water gets absorbed by sandy soils. The flooding water is useful for crops and contributes to ground water reservoir. There are various other small nalas also carry rain water from the hills during monsoon season.

2.3 The main source of Irrigation in district is Jawahar Lal Nehru canal. It distributes i.e. Dawana Disty, Sunmakhera Disty, Bhurthal Disty, Kakauria Disty, Jitpur Disty, Raliawas Disty, Kamalpur Disty, Rajiaka Disty, Tankari Disty and Sanjarpur Disty are irrigated the largest area of District i.e. the North, middle and south parts of district.

The Aulant and Rampur distributes of Mahindergarh canal also irrigated the west part of District. The Pataudi minor, Hansawas minor and Sherpur minor are also irrigated the north part of District.

Chapter-03

Flood Vulnerability of District

3.1 Two main streams, viz. the Sahibi and the Krishnavati enter the district from Rajasthan. All these cause floods in the rainy season and have been a source of damage in the district. The District was flooded due to heavy rains in the catchments area of river Sahibi which is situated in the eastern part of the district. Maximum discharge was experienced in the year 1977 in this river and many villages of the district were affected during the period. Keeping in view the flood losses in the region, Masani Barrage constructed in 1980, after the construction of Masani Barrage, a number of check dams have been constructed by Govt. of Rajasthan across the river Sahibi. However due to overflow/damage of check dams in Rajasthan area in the year 1995, about 240 villages of the district were affected due to heavy floods and this type of situation can also arise in the future as well. The list of flood vulnerable villages of district in annexure-I. The eastern part of Tehsil Rewari and the south part of Tehsil Bawal are prone to flood. The map 3.1 and 3.2 shows the pathway of the Sahibi river in respective tehsils.

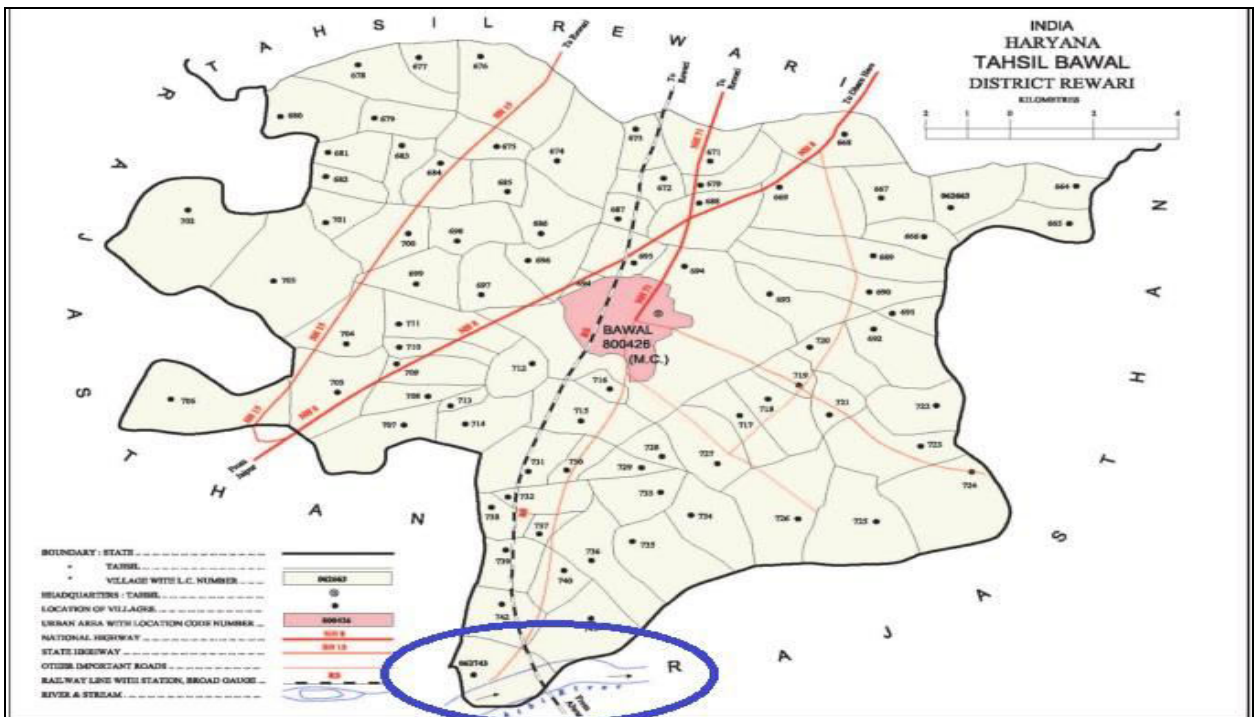

In addition to this, whenever heavy rainfall in the Arawali foothills of Tankri area, flood water passing through villages Nangli Godha, Bharawas, Chhuriawas and Dhamlawas also enters in Rewari town sometime. However Rewari drain has been constructed and made functional to intercept this flood water and allowed to flow in JLN Canal avoiding flooding of Rewari Town. One more point entering flood water from the Arawali foothills of Neermana area is Nangal Mundi village where protection bundh around the village had also been constructed.

3.2 During the previous rainy seasons, it was experienced that a sheet flow emerges right of Rewari-Dharuhera reach near village Hansaka and crosses this road at 3-4 points. This sheet flow of flood water cause inconvenience to traffic and public in general and disrupts normal life. Necessary culverts are being constructed by PWD (B&R) authorities at appropriate places under this road to provide relief to the traffic movement and Abadi in the adjacent areas.

Map No.3.2 The Sahibi river passing through Tehsil Bawal

3.3 During the year 2006, there were heavy rains in the area of Tapukara hills of Rajasthan and the flood water passing through Bhiwadi inundated NH-8 near Dharuhera town and Alawalpur village disrupting traffic movement and normal public life for 2-3 days. Necessary steps are being taken by NHAI authorities to provide passage to this water by constructing the drains.

All of above, breaches also reported in JNL canal in monsoon season in the year 1995 as well as 2010. It may also cause of flooding in small pockets.
